

SEAN ADCOCK

Sean the Waller lives and works in North Wales. He is a Dry Stone Walling Association (UK) certified Master Craftsman and the Secretary of the North Wales Branch of that organization. He is also somewhat of a scholar on the subject of dry stone walling and has written books about it and edits a periodical publication called STONECHAT.

Sean has spoken at three of our Symposiums and has taught workshops at two of them. His workshop demeanor is savvy and acerbic; his speaking style, knowledgeable and witty. We are pleased to bring him to Maine to lead another Dry Stone Walling Workshop and give a presentation at the Symposium. And Sean looks forward to seeing another part of the USA and working with the granite of coastal Maine.

Sean's website: <http://www.dry-stone.co.uk/> right: Sean's invaluable little book, STONWORK, aka "How Not to Build a Dry Stone Wall". It is available at his website below: The 2012 Stonework Symposium Dry Stone Walling Workshop group in Asheville, NC. (Sean in red.)

